The subject "Americanization" which the chapter is endeavoring to emphasize in its work for the year, was the topic discussed and interesting phases were given by Mrs. Ernest Hutton, who talked concerning the laws governing immigration in America, while Mesdames W. Ely-Hartman.

One of the most brilliant and beautiful nuptial events ever celebrated in this city was the marriage last evening of Miss Edith Maxwell Hartman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hartman, prominent residents of this city, and Charles Stuart Ely, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Ely of Jeannette, Pa., which was solemnized at the Hartman home on Benoni avenue in the presence of about a hundred representative people of this community and elsewhere.

The Hartman home is peculiarly well adapted for entertaining and lent itself splendidly to the decorative scheme which made of it a bow of beauty. In the large library where the ceremony took place a trellis had been placed which framed a large curtained window. Over and through this white covered trellis quantities of southern smilax had been trained while before the window an improvised white satin altar had been arranged immediately to the rear of which candelabra containing burning tapers had been placed and these tapers together with the shaded light cast by a large chandelier, hung with smilax threw a pretty glow and enhanced the beauty of the nuptial scene.

The parlor and reception hall were elaborately decorated with hangings of smilax from windows, cornices and chandeliers while large crystal vases and French baskets filled with Killarney roses gave a touch of color to the decorations.

Preceding the entrance of the bride party, Miss Laura M. Briggs at the piano softly and sweetly played "Bells Sault d'Armour" "Love's Greeting" and as the nuptial hour approached sounded the opening chords of the bridal chorus from Lohengrin. Miss Jessie Church, the maid of honor, came down the stairway and walked slowly to the improvised altar where she waited the coming of the bride. Preceding her the Rev. Father John O'Reilly assistant rector of St. Peter's Catholic church, took his place behind the altar and Dr. Charles Daugherty, of Beaver, Pa., followed him taking their places to the right. The bride came down the stairway with her father who gave her in marriage and walked to the altar where the beautiful ring ceremony was impressively said by Father O'Reilly.

After the marriage rites had been said the receiving line took its place and for several hours a brilliant reception was held during which the bride and groom were showered with congratulations and best wishes.

In the receiving line were the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. William Tell Hartman, parents of the bride, Mrs. Joseph E. Sands, her grandmother; Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Ely, parents of the groom and the maid of honor and the best man.

Mrs. Hartman was handsomely gowned in turquoise satin veiled in shadow lace and wore a corsage of violets and pink roses. Mrs. Ely was also handsomely attired in a gown of black sequin and tulle over satin with which she wore silver slippers and a corsage of violets and pink roses. Mrs. J. E. Sands was dressed in a costume of black chiffon.

The dining room where a salad lunch was served was elaborately decorated, the color scheme of green and white being utilized effectively. Smilax and roses were placed about the room and the serving table was beautiful. A large heart-shaped bride's cake occupied the center of the table about which had been arranged smilax, white roses and stervia, while two large crystal vases containing white roses and stervia were placed to the right and left of the cake. The brass chains of the chandelier were gracefully festooned with feathery smilax and the soft glow from these lights and the candelabra on the table created a most artistic effect.

Mrs. Howard W. Showalter who had charge of the dining room was becomingly costumed in flesh pink charmeuse with opalescent trimmings. She was assisted in the dining room by Miss Meta Smith and the Misses Ruth Phillips, Florence Hutchinson, Mrs. James Edwin Gasch and Miss Merle Williams, the latter of Clarkburg.

The bride is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Hartman, is a beautiful and stately brunette and was lovely in a costume of ivory satin fashioned from the wedding dress of her mother. The dress was elaborately trimmed in rose point lace, pearls and orange blossoms, the lace having been worn by her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Joseph E. Sands. The costume was made with long court train and a white tulle veil fastened with a bandeau of orange blossoms and falling to the hem of the long train served only to enhance the loveliness and staidness of the bride. In her arms she carried a magnificent bouquet of bride roses, orchids and valley lilies showered with sweetheart roses.

The maid of honor, also a pretty brunette, was becomingly gowned in a costume of orchid chiffon over silver cloth with silver slippers and carried a colonial bouquet of orchid colored sweet peas and sweetheart roses. Mr. Ely and his best man wore boutonniers of gardenia.

The bride who is one of the most cultured, charming and accomplished young women of this city, is a graduate of the Fairmont High school and also of The Cathedral School at Garden City, Long Island, and of the Leland Poers Dramatic Art school of Boston, having taken the regular course and a post graduate course at the latter institution. She is an accomplished dramatic reader. Since she made her debut in society she has been quite a favorite and since her engagement was announced a few weeks ago she has been extensively feted. She is a descendant of one of the most prominent families in West Virginia, her maternal grandfather having been the late Joseph E. Sands, pioneer banker of this city, who came to West Virginia from Maryland in his early youth. The family has always stood high in social and business circles and is well known throughout the state. Mr. Hartman, her father, retired some years ago from active business and is also prominently connected in the city and state.

Mr. Ely is a prominent and successful young business man of Jeannette, Pa., and is associated with his father, Charles F. Ely, in the conduct of the business of Ely Brothers in that city. He is a graduate of Notre Dame college at South Bend, Ind., and is also well connected in his native state.

Following the reception Mr. and Mrs. Ely left on the 9:40 train for an eastern wedding journey of two weeks, after which they will be at home in Jeannette. A merry crowd of friends of the young couple accompanied them to the station and gave them the usual shower of confetti and rice. The bride's going away costume was a handsome gown of tawn colored peach bloom cloth with which she wore brown shoes, hat and gloves.

When the bride ascended the stairway to don her traveling costume she tossed her bouquet and it was caught by Miss Mary Hartley Greer, who, as the legend has it, will necessarily be the next bride. When the bride cut her wedding cake the ring was captured by Miss Pauline Jamison, the coin by Miss Florence Hutchinson and the humble by Miss Ruth Phillips. The capture of the ring is also deemed prophetic that the receiver will be the next bride.

Among the out of town guests here for the marriage were Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence E. Sands and daughter, Mrs. Singleton Paul, of Wheeling; Dr. and Mrs. Charles F. Ely and daughter, Miss Katherine, of Jeannette, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. John Mack Ely, of Monessen, Pa.; Mrs. Lewis Ely, of Monessen, Pa.; Dr. Charles Daugherty, of Beaver, Pa.; Mrs. William J. McElhinney, of West Union; Miss Merle Williams, of Clarkburg, and Andrew Edmiston, of Weston. Coming to live in their families, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver J. Sands, of Richmond, Va., and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sands, of Wheeling, were unable to be present at the marriage.

The at home card reads: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stuart Ely will be at home After the first of April Jeannette, Pennsylvania. The flowers and greens for the wedding were the products of the Weber green house and were most artistic.

The total number of new European stamps issued is about 2,000, of which 1,500 are the first stamps of the European states.
